

KINGS Artist-Run Emerging Writers' Program 2018

Applications are now open for the KINGS Emerging Writers' Program 2018 (March – June).

The KINGS Emerging Writers' Program (EWP) aims to provide a platform for emerging arts writers to publish written work in response to the KINGS exhibition programme.

The KINGS EWP was established to explore and experiment with the possibilities of arts writing within a gallery context, whilst connecting writers with relevant practitioners and art professionals from the KINGS exhibition programme. As part of the 2018 KINGS EWP, participants will engage with an exhibition relevant to their interests to develop an accompanying piece of text. Throughout the program each writer will receive critical feedback and editorial assistance; their final written works are then presented as catalogue material within the gallery and on the KINGS Artist-Run website.

To apply, please provide: A cover letter and current CV.

Emailed in a single PDF to info@kingsartistrun.org.au by midnight on Friday 16 February, 2018.

Your application should contain the following:

- why you would like to participate
- relevant arts writing experience
- written interests (eg. essays, poetry, narrative, etc.)
- artistic interests (eg. sculpture, experimental music, photography, etc.)
- two examples of writing (collectively 600 words in total)

For any further information or clarification please email Jeremy Eaton at ewp@kingsartistrun.org.au